Subject: European Climate Pact – Engaging schools and universities in climate action

The European Climate Pact is an initiative launched by the European Commission to help people, communities, and organisations work together to fight climate change and adapt to its effects, while encouraging innovation, building stronger communities and boosting our economy.

We are pleased to introduce Pact2School, an activity from the European Climate Pact, aimed at inspiring, engaging, and empowering young people in schools and universities across Europe in meaningful climate action.

As part of the initiative, Ambassadors and Partners of the European Climate Pact – individuals and organisations committed to climate action – are invited to visit schools and universities in the EU to propose and organise fun and educational activities to raise awareness and engage with teachers and students on climate-related themes, for example through presentations or hands-on workshops.

Schools and universities can also take part in the Pact2School challenge and get the chance to receive funding for their own climate activity.

We encourage you to meet the Climate Pact Ambassador or Partner who contacted you to learn more about the Climate Pact and the Pact2School initiative and join the collective effort to shape a more sustainable, inclusive, and climate-resilient Europe. In the meantime, to learn more, visit the European Climate Pact website or explore the educational tool Our planet, Our future developed by the European Commission for students and educators.
